VOTER INTEGRITY PROJECT - voterintegrityproject.vote@gmail.com

7 November 2020

We observed a large anomaly in Fulton County, Georgia. As per the US Census in 2010, it had a population of 920,581. The 2019 estimated population was 1,063,937, indicating a growth of 15.57% or 143,356 people over a decade:

We estimated that the population in 2016 was around 1,016,150 using a linear growth rate of about 1.5% per year. The population has not exploded, but rather remained fairly consistent.

The voter turnout in 2008 was 43.68%, and in 2016 was 38.6%, indicating a 5% decline in voter turnout despite a steady population growth over a decade.

Vote totals are from the NY Times in 2008:

Vote totals are from Politico for 2012 and 2016:

Projected votes based on voting patterns

In 2020 we estimate that at least approximately 48.28% of the population voted (all Democratic party voters plus all Republican party voters divided by the 2019 population) or nearly a 10% increase in the overall voting population from the 2016 estimates from Politico.

Although an estimate, we believe it's actually a higher percentage due to 3rd party voters:

Additionally, we discovered a 41.1% increase in the average of Democratic party voters from the prior three election averages, but only a 9.1% Republican party increase overall. These numbers for Republicans remained approximately the same over the past decade whereas Democrats have gained 33.9% since 2016 and 41.1% over the past three Presidential elections.
